

Beads of Hope

'Beads of Hope' is a non-profit organization that sends beading projects to women's shelters across the country. Founded by Kimberly Hodous and her desire to share her love of beading with women and children in crisis, the 'Beads of Hope' project brings creativity and beautiful things to those who need it most. Volunteers package together beads and the needed materials for a singular jewelry project. These packages are then sent to women's shelters across the country so the women and children there can create a unique, beautiful piece of jewelry for themselves or someone else. The project's vision is that whether to wear themselves or to give as a gift, the process of creating a beautiful bracelet will instill confidence and peace in the makers.

"Any woman that has ever beaded knows the peace and tranquility that overtake you when you sit down to bead. It was that sense of peace and tranquility I wanted to share with women in crisis that led me to found 'Beads of Hope.' I invite you to join me in sharing an activity of peace with women and children who are in fear and displaced from their homes. Call or email me for more information on Beads of Hope now."
